The course was initiated, developed and supported by a volunteering engineer (Paul Yarin, Blackdust). In addition, eight engineers from Boeing, AeroVironment, USC and Aerospace Corporation mentored the students. In addition we have developed the following systems that will support program expansion with continuous progress: * DEVELOPED A SCALABLE MODEL with the following components: 1) synergistic partnerships with teachers; 2) funding for materials provided by school or through grants to the teacher; 3) detailed checklists for volunteers, high-school mentors, translators and instructors that give detailed directions on what to do before, during and after a course session; 4) template for lesson plan; 5) feedback on teaching strategies and curricula provided by the partner teachers to the instructors; 6) weekly support and suggestions for improvement provided by course director. UNIQUE CURRICULA THAT IDENTIFIES STUDENT MISCONCEPTIONS: We conduct pre-tests for every course that are very useful in identifying students prior knowledge and misconceptions. This enables us to develop powerful activities that directly address these misconceptions. For instance, our pre-tests have identified misconceptions such as gravity pushes up on an airplane or light travels from the eyes to the object. DISSEMINATION: All Iridescent lesson plans, evaluations, take-home activities and lesson learned are freely available to all through the following portals: * Publishing innovative lesson plans, teaching strategies and recommendations on increasing parental involvement in education journals for teachers. * Publishing informal articles and accounts of our experiences with training engineers as teachers in academic societies. * Presenting at the National Science Teachers Association (NSTA) national conferences. members share experiences with science teachers and build the Iridescent network. * An Analogies Wiki that is a collection of simple, real-world analogies, developed by Iridescent instructors and volunteers. It is available at http://scienceeducation.wikia.com/wiki/Analogies_for_teaching_science and can be used not only by incoming Iridescent instructors but by educators worldwide to explain complex concepts in simple terms. * Website (www.IridescentLearning.org) through which we share information about our mission, news, course calendars, lesson plans (in English and Spanish) and photos. * Blog (http://IridescentLearning.blogspot.com) through which we share the inner-workings of Iridescent, our challenges, trials and triumphs. * Facebook group through which we share upcoming events and recruit volunteers. * Each year we make a five-minute video showcasing our activities in the community, supplemented by interviews from parents, students, instructors and teachers. A 2007-2008 video can be seen on the blog. (1500 children and parents)

We were awarded the non-profit status in May 2007 and the President, Tara Chklovski has been working very hard to build a successful program and manage the accounting as well. We made the transfer to Quickbooks in February 2008 and as we have not been getting sufficient funding, we have had to do everything ourselves. Hence we were unable to file on time
